

Inside this issue

Issue 177 Autumn 2013

Compass

13

Editorial

Museum-wide exhibitions in Denver and New York help reaffirm the value of textiles as bearers of cultural significance.

23

Dialogue

Cleveland Museum Islamic textiles; SF Tribal Art; Parcours des Mondes in Paris; the R. L. Shep Award winner; Treffens and Thomas Wild. Also: an APG letter; what's new at www.hali.com.

28

Diary

Ten must-see events recommended by HALI.

31

Calendar

A selection of actions, exhibitions, fairs and conferences taking place this season.

32

Thread of time

Two centuries separate an English cotton handkerchief and an Afghan war rug, yet both tell of political turmoil and historical turning points.

34

Travellers' tales

Christine Martens

Are silk-weaving and wool felt-making continuing to thrive in Turkmenistan?

36

Profile

The metal hangings of West African artist El Anatsui have won him international renown. Following the recent release of El Anatsui: Art and Life HALI discovers more about one of the most celebrated visual artists of our time.

39

Comment

Tom Cole

Who are the Turkmen, and what are the origins of Turkmen culture? We may not know as much as we think we know.

40

Anatomy of an object

The Vanderbilt star-lattice carpet is about to return to auction. Delve below its dramatic surface to discover why it has previously broken saleroom records.

56

Features

56

Out of diversity, uniqueness

Ben Evans

Romain Zaleski's singular collection of Anatolian village rugs is an illuminating study in the vernacular interpretation of masterpieces.

68

Doge Foscari's 'Holbein' rug

Rosamond E. Mack

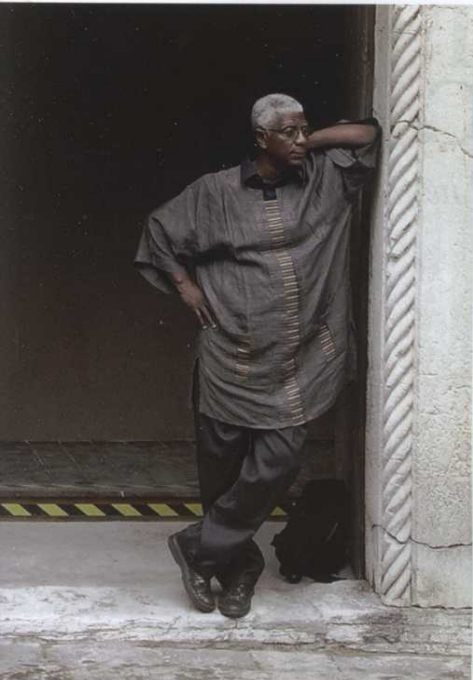

Investigating what may be the earliest pictorial representation of a sought-after type of classical Anatolian rug.

72

From the Karakum to Botany Bay

Christina Sumner

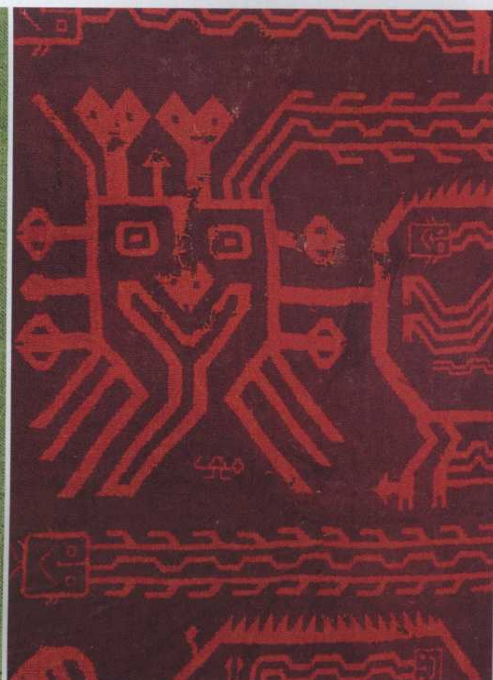

Last year, Sydney's Powerhouse Museum was made the beneficiary of a gift of more than 100 Turkmen rugs. An appreciative former curator shares her delight in this Yomut bonanza.

36

80

100

Reviews

80 The methodical enthusiast

Aurélie Samuel

The Musée Guimet in Paris has an exceptional Asian textile collection, thanks to the passion and precision of Madame Krishna Riboud.

88 Visions in rattan

Jeff Spurr

The exquisite sophistication of rattan mats from Borneo lends insight into a sadly diminished tradition.

100 Weaving with intent

Elena Phipps

The guest curator of an Andean textiles exhibition at UCLA's Fowler Museum explains how South Americans long ago solved technical problems that still challenge today's weavers.

109 Exhibition reviews

'The Pleasures of Collecting' offers highlights from the Abegg Collection in Riggisberg; at Quai Branly, 'Philippines: An Archipelago of Exchange'.

114 Book reviews

Hans König reads the first serious book on the saddle rugs and other trappings from Eurasia, Koos de Jong's Dragon and Horse: Saddle Rugs and Other Horse Tack from China and Beyond. Frank Ames considers the latest book covering textile holdings from the bountiful Tapi collection, Kashmir Shawls.

120 Market feature

Recent hammer prices show suzanis in the ascendant. This upward trend should inspire confidence in these textiles as an investment.

125 Auction

A report from Vienna where two auction houses - one old, one new, go head to head.

127 Auction price guide

Reports from London, Philadelphia, Boston, Wiesbaden and New York.

136 Last page

Rug recursive: Azeri designer Eldar Mikhailzadeh's depiction of a carpet's creation - on a carpet. Also: a preview of the next issue of HALI.

International Auctioneers
of Rare Carpets & Textiles, Works of Art
65185 Wiesbaden - Friedrichstraße 95 - Tel. +49 611 33 44 30 - Fax +49 611 30 73 69