

In this issue

Issue 200 Summer 2019

Compass

23 Editorial

How the latest research on early carpets will inform our future content

35 Dialogue

Soviet textile designs acquired by MoMA; HALI Tours to Morocco and Russia; The Hajji Baba Club Research Fellowship; pre-Columbian textiles at William Siegal Gallery; two new books published by Hali Publications Ltd.

40 Diary

The editor's pick of international exhibitions, fairs and auctions featuring carpets, textiles and tribal art in the next quarter

43 Calendar

Worldwide listings for Summer 2019

44 Thread of time

Rachel Meek
Two rugs in the Burrell Collection in Glasgow are key to ongoing developments in carpet scholarship and research

46 Travellers' tales

Rachel Meek
Unexpected views of familiar collections in Marrakesh ahead of this autumn's HALI Tour

48 Profile

J. Duncan Moore, Jr.
Legendary basketball player and carpet collector Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and his long-time friend and rug dealer Carnig Minasian

53 Comment

William Dunbar
The future of the Georgian State Museum of Folk and Applied Arts in Tbilisi, established in 1899, is under threat as its independent status has been abolished

54 Anatomy of an object

Thomas Murray and Virginia Soenksen
An Ainu attush ceremonial robe from Hokkaido

60 Common thread

A look at ikat weavings from around the world

88

Features

88 Editor's choice

Ben Evans
Reflections on gems we want to share

98 All that glitters

Lyssa Stapleton
The history of metal-enhanced textiles

104 A collection of collections

Ben Evans
Karun Thakar's diverse textile collections

124 An infinity of stripes

Lucien Viola and Alexandra Sachs
Striated Berber costume of Morocco's Anti Atlas

130 A Mamluk carpet unveiled

Alberto Boralevi
A rediscovered carpet of outstanding relevance

138 In the beginning

Michael Franses
Early weavings that may pre-date the iconic 'Pazyryk' carpet

130

152

160

Reviews

Marketplace

146
Life and sacrality

Snejana Atanova
The Marshall and Marilyn R. Wolf Collection of antique Turkmen needlework

152
Carpets from the tomb of Shah Abbas II

Turaj Zuleh
A twelve-sided Safavid silk carpet overlooked by carpet historians until now

160
Lift the curtain

Fuchsia Hart
The El Kholti Collection of Moroccan embroideries in Rabat

170
An Anatolian village treasury

Daniel Shaffer and Penny Oakley
Selections from the Zaleski Collection of Turkish village weavings

180
The excitement of not knowing everything

Markus Voigt
Hans Christian Sienknecht's Turkmen carpets

192
Book reviews

Jonathan Hope
Indonesian Textiles at the Tropenmuseum by Itie van Hout and Sonja Wijs

198
The new old

Lucy Upward and Ros Weaver
Online auctions and web-based galleries are only one aspect of the new era for our field. The younger generations are engaging with antique carpets in a number of other ways too

205
Fairs

The HALI Fair returns to London

208
Last page

Depictions alongside the ladies of the Sala delle Dame in Lombardy constitute one of the earliest visual records of Mamluk carpets in Italy

