

In this issue

Issue 214 Winter 2022

Compass

- 11
Editorial
Returning to old themes can shed new light on our understanding of textile art
- 23
Dialogue
Helmut Neumann on the Firozkohi in Afghanistan; Dr Peter Alford Andrews is awarded the Sir Richard Burton Medal; the world's largest handmade carpet; Dyers' Hall Ushak sold at Lyon & Turnbull, Edinburgh; new textile galleries in Toronto; The Burrell Collection launches carpet guide
- 26
Diary
Auctions, exhibitions and fairs worldwide
- 29
Calendar
Auctions, exhibitions, fairs and events
- 30
Thread of time
Lucy Upward
Healing links a double-ikat textile from Indonesia and a contemporary textile by American weaver Diedrick Brackens
- 32
Travellers' tales
Markus Voigt
A Tibetan carpet symposium at Castle Voigtsberg
- 40
Profile
Elisabeth Parker
Jason Nazmiyal's Manhattan dealership is at the forefront of making the rug business accessible to the public
- 44
Comment
Lauren Arnold
In tribute to John Mills, another look at early animal carpets in Western paintings
- 46
Anatomy of an object
Alan Rothblatt
An early Salor knotted-pile chuval (tent-bag) face with a rarely seen secondary ornament
- 50
Common thread
Patchwork textiles and garments variously represent religious humility, utilitarian recycling and prestigious aesthetics

78

Features

- 54
Frolics & festivities
Shilpa and Praful Shah
The TAPI Collection founders on three exceptional trade cloths in their collection
- 62
A clash of symbols?
Ebeltje Hartkamp-Jonxis
A chintz from the TAPI Collection with Japanese decorative elements
- 70
Culture and power, history and beauty
Vaishnavi Kambadur & Abhishek Poddar
Introducing the Museum of Art & Photography in Bengaluru
- 78
A carpet fit for an emperor
Fetching the fifth highest auction price for any antique rug, a Mughal pashmina carpet
- 82
Embroidering a future
Vishal Makwana
Revitalised local traditions at the Living and Learning Design Centre in Kutch

138

120

128

86
A chink of new light on chintzes

Karun Thakar
The story of dress panels from a small province in Friesland—Dutch garments of Indian chintz

92
Revisiting the past

Nicoletta Fazio
Prominence is given to carpets as context-setters at the Museum of Islamic Art in Doha

100
The golden triangle syndrome

Alberto Levi
The possible provenance of an intriguing group of difficult-to-define carpets

114
Enduring genius

James Harper
Raphael's tapestries and his wide-ranging influence across countries and centuries

120
In the footsteps of the past

Alberto Boralevi
Walking on a 16th-century Persian carpet at 'The Magnificent Sanguszko Carpets'

128
Woven art

Duncan Clarke
Textiles and aesthetics of dress are one of the most widespread and enduring art forms on the African continent, as explored in a new book

134
Samples of tradition

Emilie Salaberry
The Musée d'Angoulême's collection of Moroccan embroidery owes a great deal to Prosper Ricard

138
Shedding light on a tradition

Paul Ramsey
Antique carpets go on display in Denver with the intention to explore new perspectives

Reviews

144
Exhibition reviews

'Humans, Beasts, Gods: Textile Treasures from Ancient Peru' at Abegg-Stiftung, Riggisberg, reviewed by Cecilia Pardo; 'Weavers, Merchants and Kings' at Powerhouse Museum, Sydney introduced by Professor Pedram Khosronejad

Marketplace

150
Report

Elisabeth Parker
Outstanding carpets and textiles from the recent series of New York sales of the Ann & Gordon Getty Collection

154
Exhibitions

Ben Evans
Two related exhibitions in Milan have shown how enduring is the deep relationship between textile art and religious contemplation

158
Auction Price Guide

Auction results from around the world

168
Last page

Astounding garments and textiles star in a current show at the Institut du Monde Arabe in Paris, focused on the heritage and ancestral traditions of Uzbekistan

